This is the third recipe that I shared on how to make kaya jam. First with traditional mother's method, second was fast method, and this is the easiest among all, using bread maker. If you think fast and lazy method won't turn out delicious kaya, then I can tell you, this recipe able to produce quite nice kaya jam. Recipe I get from here.

Ingredients:

1 cup Coconut milk
1 cup Eggs(about 3-4 eggs)
1 cup sugar
Few pieces of pandan leaves

Method:

1. Pour all ingredients into breadmaker.
(I like this recipe as it calls for 1 cup of each ingredient, so I can use the coconut milk box to measure sugar and eggs, just follow the proportion)

On the other hand, if you prefer a softer texture, you can use a slightly coarser blend of the kaya jam and bread crumbs. This will give you a more crumbly texture, which is perfect for those who like a soft and moist loaf.
