

First of all, I would like to apologize to MnY blog's owner (Camus and myself) for publishing a poor quality photos. As mentioned in "About Us", the purpose of creating MnYfoodtalk.com is to share anything that is related to food. We will not only share "good" food but also "bad" food. Either "bad in taste", "bad in service", "bad in price" or anything else.

Today, we are going to share our year 2010 Christmas dinner celebration experience here.

On 25th December 2010, we celebrated Christmas dinner at romantic and good environment restaurant, Little Cottage. At first, we were regretted for not bringing along our DSLR to capture the romance moment there. But, there are few factors that make our mind decided that, "we must share about this even without DSLR, since we have our phone camera 📷"

So, what are the points that trigger our mind to share this out? By reading on the introduction, you may guess something "bad" had happened. Please continue read on to understand the situation.

1. Punctuality

Christmas Dinner Celebration | Little Cottage, Penang

Written by Administrator

Sunday, 26 December 2010 00:00

- The restaurant supposed to open at 6pm, but when we arrived at 6pm sharp, they are not ready to serve us yet. Well, we don't mind to wait for another 10-15minutes as long as don't let us wait for too long.

- We entered the restaurant at 6.30pm. At that time, waitresses were still busy walking here and there preparing things. The walking and chit chatting sound among them break the silent night.

1. Service

- Service is poor.
- Water is served only upon request.
- Waitress took back your plate without asking our permission, even before the food is finish.

1. Food

- Foods are just nice.
-

Christmas Dinner Celebration | Little Cottage, Penang

Written by Administrator

Sunday, 26 December 2010 00:00

are not well presentation for dessert was poor. The dessert's cups are different in size and cups

Christmas Dinner Celebration | Little Cottage, Penang

Written by Administrator

Sunday, 26 December 2010 00:00

